Honor to Local Printer.

Governor Sproul sent the nomination of Robert C. Miller, of Gettysburg, as Superintendent of the Department of Printing and Binding of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania at the afternoon session of the Senate Tuesday. The nomination was immediately confirmed by the members of the Upper House. Mr. Miller will succeed Dr. Edward Long, of Chambersburg, for a term lasting until February 8, 1921.

Mr. Miller served his apprenticeship of "devil," etc., in the print shop of the "Star and Sentinel." He next conducted a job office in the G. W. Weaver & Son's Store. He was with the Compiler force until his time was taken up with the development of the Jennie Wade House. Then when the daily "Star and Sentinel" was launched he became manager of that paper and later Chairman of the Republican County Committee. Mr. Miller is never happier than within sight and smell of printer's ink and will undoubtedly find his new post of honor to his tastes. We congratulate him upon the honor.

WORK ON HOSPITAL STARTS

MRS. JOHN M. WARNER BREAKS GROUND ON MONDAY.

Preliminaries of Incorporation—Physicians of County Support and Endorse Undertaking.

Monday, March 24, marked the occasion of the breaking of the ground for the Annie M. Warner Hospital on the ridge in the Warner field on west side of South Washington street. Stakes had been driven by Edward Hewitt of the Battlefield Commission engineering force last week. The site is a rarely beautiful one, to the east and south the site will face the National Cemetery, and to the west there is a fine view of the mountains.

Mrs. John M. Warner had the pleasure of taking out the first shovel of dirt for the foundation and this was done in the presence of her husband and a few friends and a picture was caught by John A. Mumper of the act that will become part of the history of the undertaking.

The same afternoon a dozen men were making the dirt fly in digging out the foundation and twenty men were at work on Tuesday. Unless the rain prevents it is expected to have the cellar completed by end of this week. The top of the ridge on which the building stands was found easy digging and no rock. The basement will be eight feet under ground in front and four feet at the rear. The building will stand at an elevation of twelve feet above Washington street.

The informal permission from the United States releasing two acres of the 20 acres rented of Mr. Warner has been confirmed and all plans have matured to go right ahead with the erection of the building. The building will stand back from Washington street about two hundred feet and will have a clear space on either side of one hundred and fifty feet. The building will be constructed of stone for the basement and the two stories above will be of Gettysburg brick and the plan of a mansard roof over the building is under contemplation.

In the basement will be located the kitchen, laundry, morgue and a number of other necessary rooms. The first floor will be for men patients with a number of private rooms, ward, sun parlor and several rooms will be devoted to apartments for the nurses. The second floor will be for the women patients, private rooms, ward, children's ward, and sun parlor, and on this floor will be located the operating room and other rooms needed by surgeons and physicians.

On Tuesday afternoon there was a meeting of the incorporators of the Annie M. Warner Hospital and of the physicians. Those who will ask for a charter of incorporation have been invited by Mr. and Mrs. John M. Warner and all who have been invited have accepted and given their approval to the project. The charter was read and explained to the incorporators and the physicians were especially invited to make plain their desires, as it was the ardent purpose of the proposed incorporation to have arrangements such as would meet the approval and endorsement of every physician.

The further explanation was made that the corporation would have the work of a drive to raise money for an equipment and of an endowment fund, and that the experience of hospitals in neighboring counties showed that an endowment was very important and the time to raise it was at the present time. After discussion of drive and time of making the same, a motion was unanimously adopted that the drive for the hospital would be made immediately following the Victory Loan drive, that the drive would be for victory bonds as well as cash. That a committee would be organized in Gettysburg, with other committees in all parts of the county, formed of corporators, physicians and others who would be asked to help the good cause. The plans for the building were shown to those present and all expressions heard were those of enthusiasm and encouragement.

The Board of Directors of the hospital are the following: I. A. Singmaster, W. F. Boyle, H. T. Weaver, Charles H. Smith, Edward M. Bender, John D. Keith, Wm. Arch McLean, of Gettysburg; F. V. Topper, McSherrystown; W. R. Stary, York Springs; Dennis C. Asper, Aspers; George W. Swartz, Cashtown; Chester J. Tyson, Florida Dale; Daniel C. Jacobs, Franklin township; Chester O. Chromer, Hampton; J. E. Zimmerman, Liberty township; Frank A. Waybright, Mt. Joy township; Charles E. Raffensperger, Arendtsville; George W. Baker, Abbotstown; S. B. Goehman, Bendersville; S. G. Bigham, Biglerville; Millard B. Stoner, Fairfield; Elmer D. Backey, Littlestown; Elmer C. Livingston, New Oxford.

The meeting on Tuesday was notable for the fact that eighteen physicians of the county were present, and enthusiastic over the hospital. Those present were Dr. Elderdice, McPherson; Dr. Geo. Rice and A. C. Rice, of McSherrystown; Dr. Smith, of Centre Mills; Drs. Hollinger and Miller, of Abbotstown; Drs. Crouse, Gettler and Lindaman, of Littlestown; Dr. Trout, of Fairfield; Dr. Seaks, of New Oxford; Dr. Casman, of York Springs; Dr. Wolf, of Arendtsville; Dr. Wooster, of Cashtown, and Drs. Dalbey, Dickson, Hartman, and Felty, of Gettysburg. Dr. Geo. Stoner, of Brooklyn, was also present. The physicians had a separate meeting of their own, endorsing and approving the purposes, and formed a staff for the hospital to be composed of all physicians in the county. Of this body Dr. T. C. Miller, of Abbotstown, was elected president, and Dr. J. P. Dalbey, secretary, and they will adopt by-laws for approval of the corporation regulating the hospital just as the physicians desire to have the same. It was the largest turnout of physicians of the county for years, about two-thirds of the medical profession of the county and their support gives great encouragement toward the accomplishment of the work to be done.

Miller Escapes from Jail.

John Miller, who shot Abner S. Mills, made his escape from jail on Friday, March 28, between two and three o'clock in the afternoon. Miller in some way obtained a saw and sawed the bolts off his cell door in the jail and walked out the front door and started eastward along the jail stable. Sheriff Hartman was on his way toward the jail and passing the post office saw the man walk out the front door and did not recognize him and did not know what had happened until he reached the jail. Miller had taken five or six bricks from the wall of his cell some days ago and he had been chained to the floor. He continued his impromptu until the chains were taken off him and upon the third day afterwards sawed his way to liberty.

Sheriff Hartman was repeatedly warned of the danger of escape and was offered guard duty and night by the Commissioners of the county but said he was able to keep the prisoners in jail, notwithstanding he was told again and again he could not do so. Sheriff offered a reward of $100 for capture of Miller and State Police and others got busy at once in effort to capture him.

Saw Fifty-seven Deer.

F. Mark Bream, Arthur Hutchinson and Earl Deatrick returned from an automobile trip to Mt. Alto on Sunday with a deer story that is a real thriller. As they were riding along the old pasture field on the top of the flat back of the Sanitarium they saw a herd of deer grazing. They stopped to count them and were amazed to find forty-seven. A little farther down the road they saw a bunch of five and still farther on five more. The animals seemed quite tame due probably to the instinctive realization that next November is a long way off.

Farmers==Help Us to Help You

BEFORE long you are going to be very busy. To make your crop, you are going to need the service of every machine you have. There is a little lull right now. This time can be put to mighty good use.

How are your farm machines? Wouldn't it be a wise precaution to look them over carefully to assure yourself that there are no parts needing replacement now or later on?

By making a list of present or possible future requirements and giving it to us before or during Repair and Inspection Week, March 3-8, we shall be able to furnish you what you want when you want it.

If there is any item on your list we do not happen to carry in stock, we can procure it and hold it in readiness for you. It takes the delay, and consequent loss of time out of farm emergencies. The question of a day or two during the busy season on the farm is a serious one. Make up that list now and let us have it.

FOREIGN-BORN LEAD IN LOAN DRIVE

Section of a Group of Foreign-Language Representatives Who Met in Philadelphia to Boost the Victory Liberty Loan.

Foreign-born citizens of the Third Federal Reserve District won the distinction of being the first group of the new Victory Liberty Loan organization to start work when they launched their campaign in Philadelphia on Tuesday, March 4.

Representatives of nineteen different nationalities, comprising the sub-committee chairmen of the Foreign Language Division, attended and made suggestions for the conduct of the Victory Liberty Loan campaign. In line with the plans of the general committee, this is to be handled on a more intensive scale than any of the four previous loans. In the absence of Judge Joseph Buffington, Chairman, Cassimir A. Sienkiewicz, Executive Secretary, presided.

An outline of the new organization was given by A. E. Berry, associate director of the War Loan Organization for the Third Federal Reserve District.

"In the security to be offered in the Victory Liberty Loan," he said, "the chief difference from other loans is that instead of offering bonds that mature in fifteen years, the government will offer notes which it will agree to repay in one, two, three, four or five years."

To illustrate his point, Mr. Berry said the securities about to be offered are more like currency, which is payable on demand. He also emphasized that one never dreams of selling a dollar at less than its face value.

"Security men who know what they are talking about say there are hardly any securities on the market that give a better net return than government bonds," he said. "The notes, because of the new tax conditions under which they will be sold, will give a better net return than anything else."

He likened the members of the Foreign Language Division to trustees for the government in their mission of explaining the Victory Liberty Loan to foreign-born peoples.

E. McLean Watters, Chairman of the Advisory Committee for Pennsylvania of the War Loan Organization, said that foreign-born people of the Third Federal Reserve District made enviable records in the four preceding Liberty Loan campaigns. He predicted that they will do even better in the Victory Liberty Loan.

"Loan subscribers are scattered in some states," said Mr. Watters, "but in Pennsylvania about every third person, whether man, woman or child, is a holder of Liberty Bonds."

Former Governor Edwin S. Stuart paid a tribute to the foreign born when he said that the people who helped to build America were those who came as immigrants and became good American citizens.

"We are called upon now to pay for what victory is to do for all of us in the years to come," he said. "We are to pay our debt not only for ourselves, but also to make all the peoples of the earth free to live and worship God according to the dictates of their consciences."

In introducing the chairmen of the various racial sub-committees, Mr. Sienkiewicz asked all the committee-men to begin at once an active campaign against swindlers who are circulating among small bond holders reports that the bonds are worthless.

"This condition is particularly bad in the mining regions," said Mr. Sienkiewicz, "and, of course, the men who are growing rich out of it find a fertile field for their work among the foreign-born, chiefly those who cannot speak English. They are buying at tremendous discounts not only bonds of the first four loans, but also War Savings and Thrift Stamps. We can do a great deal to block this if we will write and urge all our friends of foreign birth to write to their relatives and friends in other parts of the state, advising them that government bonds are as good as money in the bank and warning them against the swindlers."

Races represented in the Foreign Language Division are Albanian, Armenian, Chinese, Czech-Slovak, French, German, Greek, Hungarian, Italian, Japanese, Lettish, Lithuanian, Polish, Roumanian, Russian, Scandinavian, Serbian, Syrian, Ukrainian.

can and will be revived before the loan campaign opens, Mr. Mason predicted.

"The job before the publicity and education campaign is to harrow the ground in preparation for the campaign," Mr. Mason said. "They all say it will be a hard job—a hard job—but I couple this with the statement that we are going to put it over as we put over every other loan. We will finish the job in a good American way. Don't pay attention to the early pessimists because they can't be pessimists by the 21st of April."

Mr. Mason referred to the tremendous bonded debt assumed by the nation during the Civil War and declared that in proportion our present burden is very light. He estimated that if the country was asked to pay in proportion to its present wealth what was required of it in Civil War days, payments would average $5,000,000,000 per annum and the bonded debt of the country would be $40,000,000,000. With the Victory Loan successfully floated our present bonded debt will be only $24,000,000,000 from which is to be deducted $9,000,000,000 loaned to other nations, bringing the national indebtedness resulting from the war down to $15,000,000,000.

Mr. Mason scolded critics who would have pursued a policy of holding down expenditure when by lavish use of money the war was ended much more speedily than any one believed possible. At least 100,000 lives and 200,000 other casualties had been saved by the quick ending of the war, according to the most conservative of fiscal estimates, he declared.

A number of novel features to attract public interest to the loan campaign were disclosed by Gilbert E. Galde, Director of Publicity. If the present plans are carried out, other President Wilson or General Pershing will, on the eve of the opening of the campaign send a radio-phonograph message from the Eiffel Tower to Washington. This will be a one hundred word appeal from the American armies to the American people urging success for the loan.

Secretary Glass, who will likely receive the message, will relay it immediately through a master phone to sixty cities in each of which 100 Liberty Loan leaders will be assembled to receive and to pass it on to their own organizations.

W.B. WILSON SEES PROSPERITY ERA

Secretary of Labor Says There Will Be Long Period of Industrial Activity.

(No one is in better position than Secretary of Labor Wilson to speak of conditions affecting trade and industry in the United States. Here he tells concisely why the American people should feel gratified with things as they are now and with the outlook for the future. No better reason could be given for subscribing to the Victory Liberty Loan, because the money secured through this loan will be the big factor in placing this country on the after-the-war basis of prosperity which Secretary Wilson predicts.)

By WILLIAM B. WILSON, Secretary of Labor.

When the German military forces had broken through the western front, and there was nothing between them and Paris but thirty miles of space, it was the boys that we feared we could not mobilize, that we could not train, transport or equip, that stepped into the breach at Chateau Thierry, stemmed the tide of the German forces, turned them backward toward Berlin, restored the morale of the French and the English armies, and won the victory for our forces.

Surely if we can take a peacetime organization and transform it almost overnight into a great military machine, we can by the exercise of the same intelligence and the same energy take a military organization and transform it into a peacetime machine.

Before the Federal Reserve Act came no provision had been made for financing our foreign trade; we had not developed any large foreign trade in proportion to our domestic trade, and one of the reasons was that we had not found a method of providing the proper credits, except through the banking institutions of other countries. The Federal Reserve Act gave to our financial institutions, under certain restrictions, the opportunity of establishing branch banks in foreign countries, thereby laying the foundation for the extension of credits in the development of our foreign trade.

Big Shipping Program.

The necessities of the war compelled us to engage in a tremendous shipbuilding program. We have a very large tonnage now afloat and more ships under construction for merchant purposes than any other country in the world.

We have, therefore, already provided the three great elements necessary for the development of a foreign trade, and when we get our domestic industries into proper operation, and our business men begin to look abroad for a market for the surplus products, they will find the means of vitalizing these agencies that are already in existence.

So that our problem resolves itself, for the time being, into one of demobilization, and the starting of our business on a post-war basis.

It has been stated by statistical experts that even during our periods of industrial activity we had in the neighborhood of a million workers unemployed.

We estimate the total amount of unemployment at the present time is 700,000. That, in itself, based upon our experiences of the past, is not an alarming amount of unemployment. The cause for alarm, if any there be, is the fact that the number is continually increasing, because the men who are engaged in industry find themselves in an uncertain situation. There is a disposition to hold off on the part of the employers in the hope of prices coming down. There is a possibility of prices coming down without there being an effect upon the wage rates. The manufacturer realizes that if he undertakes to cut prices and his neighbor does likewise, there is a possibility of the whole structure crumbling and the prices going down below even a normal profit.

Wages at Top Notch.

During the period of the war our workers received more in actual, in real wages than they had ever received at any previous time. The cost of living had gone up, but the hourly wage rate of the workers had gone up almost in the same ratio. There were some instances where the hourly wage rate had gone up in excess of the increased cost of living; there were other instances where it did not go up quite as far as the cost of living, but the average was very close to the increase in the cost of living.

However, the workers had steadier employment than they had been in the habit of receiving; they worked overtime with time and a half for the extra time they worked, and they worked Sundays, in many instances. So the aggregate they received was greater than they had ever had before. Many of them have some of that in reserve now that can be utilized and will be utilized, against any general attempt to reduce the wage rates; and because of the disposition on the part of labor, because of the fact that any period of depression that may confront us must of necessity be a short period, and that the reaction into post-war activities, giving us a period of industrial prosperity, must come in a very brief period of time, it would be folly to engage in the conflict necessary for the reduction in the wage rates when so little return is to be had for it. The wage workers and the farmers have reserves in hand that will be used in the maintenance of their families, and in addition to the equipment. That means that when we get into a real post-war period, in the aggregate a tremendous amount of additional purchase will be made.

We are short in our normal supply of labor somewhere between three million and five million workers; so if we could engage in our pre-war activities on a post-war basis immediately, there would be a shortage of the supply of labor.

It is not very generally known, but it is nevertheless a fact, that the strikes that took place at Seattle, at Butte, at Paterson, at Lawrence, and at a number of other places recently were not industrial, economic disputes, in their origin, no matter how much economics may have been involved in the dispute. A deliberate attempt was made to create a social and political revolution that would establish the Soviet form of government in the United States and put into effect the economic theories of the Bolsheviks of Russia. It failed because for two years the Department of Labor and other agencies of the government have been fighting that false philosophy, not by the utilization of force, but by appeal to the judgment, to the reason of our people.

Interests Are Mutual.

Employers and employees have a mutual interest: not an identical interest, mark you, but a mutual interest in securing the largest amount of production from a given amount of labor, having due regard to the health, safety, opportunities for rest, recreation and development of the workers; for if there is nothing produced, there will be nothing to divide; if there is a large amount produced, there will be a large amount to divide; and the interests of the employer and the employee only diverge when it comes to a division of that which has been mutually produced; and if they are wise in their generation, when that divergence takes place they will sit down around the council table and endeavor to work out the problem on as nearly a just basis as the circumstances surrounding the industry will permit.

I do not believe that any country owes any man a living; but I do believe that every country owes every man an opportunity to earn a living. To place men at work on any job, where the results from it are not needed, is just so much waste of time and energy and man-power. But there is a tremendous amount of work, a tremendous amount of improvement that is needed; and so that the minds of our workers will not be fertile fields for the propagation of false philosophy it is our duty to see to it that these activities are now engaged in to the fullest extent.

We have visions of industrial activity in the near future. All of the wars that have been engaged in from the beginning of the development of the factory system until now have been followed by periods of industrial activity. Now, with the vast amount of destruction of life and of property that has taken place in this war, as I visualize the situation, once we get back into a regular post-war swing, there will be at least a decade of industrial activity, a period in which the false philosophies of Bolshevism will find no foothold, and where we can go on working out our social problems, our economic problems and our industrial problems after careful consideration of each of them, as they are presented, and thus move onward in an evolutionary way to that higher sphere that our country is destined to occupy.

100,000 BEDS FOR WOUNDED

Mere Comfort Bill is Million Dollars a Week.

Hospital facilities for the care of 105,476 sick and wounded soldiers are available in army hospitals, according to the February report of the Surgeon General of the Army.

This is one testimonial to the Yanks which the American people can properly insure through the Victory Liberty Loan. At the rate charged in the hospitals of the country, $1 a day is required to maintain each bed. In one week the total for maintenance of soldiers' beds would, on the same basis, reach three-quarters of a million dollars.

Many of our sick and wounded boys require special treatment so that the expense is likely to be greater than the low daily rate quoted. Then, too, only a part of the sick and wounded have reached us.

The Victory Liberty Loan which the people of the United States are going to put over with a whoop will provide the very best care and treatment for every soldier, sailor and marine who needs attention. Your mind can be easy on that score when you subscribe to the Victory Loan.

LEND OR BE TAXED. WHICH?

"The war will not be over until the United States government has honorably met every commitment made in order to win the war."

This is the declaration of Carter Glass, Secretary of the Treasury. In plain words, we can't cry quits until we pay off our debts.

There are two ways of securing their payment. One way is with money lent by the people to the government. The other way is with money taken from the people in the form of taxes by the government.

VARIED "VOICES" OF FROGS

Man Who Has Studied Subject Ascertains He Can Tell Different Species by the Notes.

The first vertebrate creatures to succeed in producing vocal sounds were the amphibians, and, although there has been little variety in their individual repertoires through the ages, they have diligently cultivated their powers. Dr. Frank Overton, in an account of the frogs and the toads of Long Island, describes their distinctive calls and songs. The common toad of Long Island has "a combination of a low whistle and a moan"; the common toad of the mainland utters "a sweet, thrilling whistle"; the spadefoot makes a squawk "like the groan of a deep-voiced man who is having his tooth pulled"; the chorus of the cricket frog "heard at a distance sounds like jingling of small sleigh bells," and close by "like the rattle of small pebbles poured upon a cement pavement." The common tree frog utters a loud, musical trill, and now and then a note "exactly like the sound made by a hen turkey that is calling to her mates." The spring "peeper" whistles shrilly; the leopard frog says "croak" very slowly, "in an extremely low-pitched bass voice"; the pickerel frog makes a soft sound like "a gentle musical snore"; the wood frogs heard at a distance "sound like a flock of barnyard ducks clucking, not quacking"; the note of the green frog "resembles that made by plucking a string on a harp or a bass violin." The bullfrog has a voice that in volume corresponds to the size of his body, which is more than eight inches long. "The sound resembles the bellowing of a bull." Doctor Overton can pick out the species by their voices and the notes.—Youth's Companion.

HOW TO PLANT AN ORCHARD

Get Order in Hands of Some Reliable Nurseryman and Insist on Trees of High Quality.

If you are thinking of planting an orchard get your order in the hands of some reliable nurseryman immediately and insist on having trees of the highest quality and of varieties that are adapted to your section of the state. In making your calculations as to the number of trees needed use the following planting directions: Apples, 20 by 30 feet, 49 trees per acre; peaches, 18 by 18 feet, 134 trees per acre; pears, 60 by 60 feet, 12 trees per acre; plums, 20 by 20 feet, 108 trees per acre; cherries, 20 by 20 feet, 108 trees per acre, and grapes 8 by 10 feet, 544 vines per acre.

HAPPY MORRISON MARSHALL

Morrison Marshall, a youngster adopted about two years ago by Vice President and Mrs. Marshall, has made a place for himself not only in the affections of his adopted parents but in the hearts of many of their friends. He was the sickly half of twins when the Marshalls adopted him, but he was quickly brought to health and shows every sign of happiness.

Capitalized Mother-in-Law.

Thomas Fleet, publisher of the Boston Evening Post in colonial days, is said probably to have been the first man who ever capitalized his mother-in-law. Among the many ways Fleet found to supplement the income of his paper was from the sale of "Mother Goose Rhymes." Fleet, who had married Elizabeth Goose, was very much pleased with the nursery jingles with which his mother-in-law amused his children at night. After he had put the rhymes into type he found it necessary to print several editions to meet the demand. They were the famous "Mother Goose Rhymes" familiar to every one of the now grown up generation.

Cheerfulness Wears Very Well. Perhaps the suit or dress that you wear every day is not wearing well. There may be holes in the sleeves or worn parts under the arms. That is bound to happen with any kind of clothing. There is something else that you may want that will last indefinitely, even if it is not clothing. It will last 365 days of the year and still continue if you determine to make it last. This is cheerfulness. There is nothing more durable and more desirable than just bright, cheery good nature.

Hall's Catarrh Medicine is the only medicine that acts through the blood and cleanses the surface of the system and cures the foundation of the disease, giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and restoring him to his normal state. The proprietors have so much faith in the curative powers of Hall's Catarrh Medicine that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for full particulars. Address J. C. Willys-Overland

Owners Are Better Guides than Specifications

Nothing our salesmen can say about the Willys-Knight motor car can be as convincing as the statements of Willys-Knight owners. The man who had driven a Willys-Knight car thousands of miles becomes so enthusiastic over the sleeve-valve motor that he is rarely ever content until he prevails upon his friends to profit by his experience. The Willys-Knight sleeve-valve motor is so ungrudging and unflagging in its performance that it has come to be known as the motor that always runs. The staunch allegiance of Willys-Knight owners has given rise to the expression—"Once a Willys-Knight owner always a Willys-Knight owner."

RETROSPECT THAT IS VAIN

Mournful Man Has Come to Realize That All Things That Are to Be, Will Be.

"I sometimes think as I watch the efficient workings of a cream separator," said the stoop-shouldered man,
"how much happier my life might have been could I but have had when I was first married a separator, operated somewhat on the same principle, into which my wife's relatives could have been thrust, the crank turned and by centrifugal or centripetal force—I can never remember which is which—the two kinds divided, like the sheep and the goats of Holy Writ.

"Out of one spout would have come the undesirable ones—those who converted my cherished theories, disagreed with me on various subjects, and jeered at my lack of faculty, the while they borrowed money from me and paid not again, and wore, their sex permitting, such of my Sunday garments as fitted them. And from the other spout would have emerged the good ones—those who tried to pay their way by being sympathetic and tactful, who were diplomatic enough to agree with me when it did not make any particular difference, and occasionally lent me money and were not forever dogging me to get it back. But, of course, nothing of the kind was then or ever will be invented. Man was made to mourn and his wife's kin were made to see that he does mourn."
—Kansas City Star.

Birds and Beasts of Old Times.

Plants, animals and birds of the Bible have been made the subject of a special exhibition in the natural history department of the British museum. Among the striking bits of information contained in this work are the following: The common fowl is not mentioned in the old testament, and was probably introduced into Palestine after the Roman conquest. The "unicorn" of the old testament was probably the Syrian aurochs, now extinct. That the "behemoth" was not the hippopotamus is believed probable because of the fact that there is no record of the latter animal in Syria or Palestine in historical times. The "tares" of the Bible were darnel grasses, whose seeds are poisonous; the "rose" was probably the narcissus, while the "lily" was the poppy anemone.

Big Sculpture.

The most remarkable proposal ever made about Mount Athos was that of the architect Dinocrates. His plan was to cut it into the shape of a gi-gantic statue of Alexander the Great, holding in the right hand a city, in the left a tank that was to receive all the waters of the region. Alexander was much taken with the scheme. But it was eventually rejected on the ground that the neighboring country was not fertile enough to feed the inhabitants of the projected city. Another of Dinocrates' plans was a temple to the wife of King Ptolemy of Egypt, with a roof of loadstones that would keep an iron statue of her floating in the air.

SAYS ALL WOMEN ARE LIARS

German Diplomat, Who Got the "Mitten," Declares Fair Sex Deficient Morally.

"All women are liars and are deficient in their sense of moral duty."
This and more is the opinion of Baron Herrmann von Kuhlmann of Bavaria, unmarried and attached to German embassy at Peking, who arrived on the Chiyo Maru recently.
According to fellow passengers, the baron formed his views on the voyage when his attentions to Miss Katherine Enright of Chicago did not meet with hearty response.

"A woman cannot recognize the same moral responsibility as a man," said the baron. "No marriage can remain a happy one for more than a year. By that time a man will lose faith in his wife."

Then, turning to Miss Enright, the baron said:
"We have had a pleasant trip. But to have you for a wife if I could—never! You are too energetic."
Returning to the interview, the baron continued:
"Woman is illogical and untrustworthy. She changes her mind too frequently. Woman has no feeling requiring her to tell the truth. In Germany a man and wife are comrades, but in America—never. Here the women are proud and selfish and the men suffer for it."

118 SIMON SIMPLE GETS A BITE

"Sophisticated Billy"

By LOUISE OLIVER

Billy Crawford was tired and wanted a rest. It had been an intense winter at the plant, with every wheel turning and every man working, and now that the warm, languorous days of spring had come he decided that he needed a vacation.

So he called on Eleanor Gage one evening to bid her good-by and to impart the news that he was going to New York "for a time."

"What do you call a 'time' Billy?" she asked.

He flicked the ash from his cigarette.

"Well," he answered, with a man-of-the-world air. "It means to the sophisticated a round of pleasure. The usual thing, you know—shows, restaurants, golf, gardens this time of the year, and so forth. Lots of pretty, well-dressed women, people you get along well with if you're the right sort, and all that. Fickle Merrick and I usually hang out together. Dick knows a crowd of people. I'm to meet him at the Gilmore."

Eleanor counted her stitches before she answered.

"But just now, Billy, do you think it's the thing?"

He regarded her with tolerant amusement. "I suppose you mean the war. You rather have a sneaky idea I ought to enlist, haven't you, Nellie?"

"Oh, it isn't exactly that. I just think it's not good taste to throw away money foolishly when it's so badly needed elsewhere."

"Well, maybe it looks like fiddling while Rome burns, but I've earned the right to have a good time. I've worked all winter on war stuff—what more do you want?"

"The boys in the camps have worked all winter, too, Billy. And they're not getting any rest now, or prospect of rest with France ahead."

He threw away his cigarette impatiently, and then he said a mean thing. "That's what it is to live in a small town. You girls are like every one else; you get one idea in your head and you can't get it out. That's what I'm going to New York for—to get away from knitting and Red Cross and Liberty bond funds and war talk. I'm going where people understand where they have a broader view and don't think you're a criminal if you have a little fun."

Then Eleanor waxed righteously angry. Forgiveness was the sack which fell unheeded along with the ball of yarn at her feet.

"When, if living in New York means you forget the war and our boys over there for one instant, I'm glad I am a small-town girl. And, although just now you don't seem especially anxious for my answer to a certain question you asked me a week or so ago, I'm going to tell you now that I won't marry you. You're a slacker."

Billy left at that, crestfallen. He really hadn't meant to get into it so deep. Besides, he really did care for Eleanor's opinion, and he cared for her a great deal; but he had to confess that the glamour of his trip very softened the sorrow of losing her very considerably. Besides, he thought she might change her mind by the time he got back.

The next day William R. Seymour registered at the big metropolitan hotel and waited for Richard Merrick who arrived in the course of a few hours, and proceeded to tell his troubles to his friend.

"I say, Bill, has your town gone nuts on the war?"

"Has it?" asked Billy.

"I'm hanged if I'm not glad to go away," went on William. "A fellow can't buy himself a pack of fags any more without some dame piping up and saying: 'Wouldn't you rather be in the War Savings stamps?' Or some grandmother poking in with: 'That young man, would keep a Red Cross child for one day.' I did buy a bond. Now I wish they'd let me alone."

"Same here," said Billy, gloomily. Then he brightened. "But we're wasting time, old man. We're here to forget. Let's call up the girls and get some thing started."

"The girls were conside of Dick's very first wife and up to date.

"Then, Young Man, Why Don't You?"

Right to have a good time. I've worked all winter on war stuff—what more do you want?"

"The boys in the camps have worked all winter, too, Billy. And they're not getting any rest now, or prospect of rest with France ahead."

"The girls were conside of Dick's very first wife and up to date.

"All right, I'll ring them now. Say, Bill, did you ever see so many soldiers in your life?"

"Never did. Nellie says they don't get a rest. She ought to come to New York and find out. I shouldn't mind splurging round in a uniform myself."

But William's remark had been overheard. An old gentleman at the next table leaned forward. "Then, young man, why don't you? You can get one for nothing."

Billy flushed and murmured something about doing war work. But the old man went on. "These soldiers and officers are leaving for overseas duty. Most of them go from the port of New York. The Englishmen and French soldiers are here on war work. Some of them off ships that carry our men over. They're all here for a purpose, young man. And if they appear to splurge, surely they've earned the right. Why shouldn't a man be proud of his uniform?"

Leon Merrick himself answered their call. "Oh, I'm so glad you boys are here. I'm nearly dead with work and can't get a soul to help. Every one is so busy. I've got two tons of stuff to take from our Red Cross unit to headquarters. I'm running a motor truck, you know, and you have saved my life. The boxes are too heavy for me to handle. I'll run the car around to the hotel and pick you up."

The two men looked at each other, but had nothing to say. Leon Merrick was very pretty. Of course they could not refuse.

That night, tenderly nursing the blisters on their hands, they got ready for the theater. Things were looking up a bit. The whole jolly crowd was going, and their faded spirits revived at the prospect.

The play was Blanche Bates in "Getting Together," a plea for men to join the army, an appeal that was an appeal. There was no after-theater supper as of old.

"Don't you want to hear Abbe Flynn tomorrow?" asked Jane Merrick. "We're all going after surgical dressing class. They say he is wonderful."

Again Billy and Dick exchanged glances and again they accepted.

At the end of a week, after hearing the bishop of York, Major Watt and Anne Morgan, they were ready to go home. They had changed—not their opinion of New York but of their own towns.

When Eleanor opened the door to a very contrite Billy, he was in uniform.

"I came to ask you to forgive me, dear," he said humbly. "I guess I had to have my eye-teeth cut on this war business. Well, I've cut 'em, dear. I see now I've got to go. You were right—I was a slacker."

"No, you're not, Billy, dear," declared Eleanor proudly. "It takes a brave man to acknowledge when he's wrong. I didn't mean what I said about the other, Billy, either. I'll marry you whenever you like."

NEWSPAPER MAN'S HARD LUCK

Surely All Brothers of the Pen Will Feel Sympathetic Over What Befell "Wally."

In the life of a newspaper man many strange things befall. Some are good and some are bad, and some are both, depending on the point of view.

In Butte, Mont., there lived for many years a famous newspaper man. His name was Warren Walsworth, but to more people than any other man in town he was known as "Wally," and that sobriquet was a clear mirror to "Wally's" character.

Then one day it happened. "Wally's" customary joviality was sadly modified; instead of his celebrated smile, he wore a look of perplexity. Plainly something deep and profound was weighing on "Wally's" mind.

After much solicitous urging, the secret was revealed.

"Boys," announced "Wally" mournfully, "I've inherited a mansion on the Hudson, and I'm expected to keep it up."

His Growth.

"This war has broadened us all," said the philosophical guest. "Many a man is much bigger because of it than he would otherwise have been."

"That's a fact, Mr. Solman," agreed the landlord of the Pecten tavern.

"There's Anzi Fagg, for instance. A few years ago he didn't feel equal to doing more than telling the rest of us how the town government here should be conducted. But now he considers himself perfectly competent to settle all the peace terms. His wife, by the way, still takes in washing. If you need your shirts and collars done up she'll give you as good a job as a Chinaman could, and just about as cheap."—Kansas City Star.

Persistence Does It.

"It's the allies' persistence that won this war," said Senator Lewis.

"The allies suffered defeat after defeat, but from each defeat they learned something."

"It's like the advice which the editor of the Cincinnati Scholastic gave to an unlucky wooer who had been rejected by seven girls in turn. The editor wrote:

"Unlucky Wooer.—Go ahead. Don't be discouraged. Never say die. You must have learnt a lot by what you have gone through. Strikes as you must hold something like a record. Well stick all your experience together and make love to the next girl who comes round and takes your fancy. If she doesn't reciprocate, try another. Remember you only want one girl to say 'Yes.'"

PAY HIGH PRICE FOR BOOKS

Lords of the Checkbook Find Profit in the Treasures of the Library.

There is probably no lover of books who, having the means, would not be glad to possess treasures of the library which have won additional interest from association with great names. It is not surprising that Jean Grollier's copy of Ovid's "Heroidum Epistolae," with Grollier's arms and device, should have brought several hundred dollars at an auction sale in this city, or that a record price should have been paid for the first collected edition of the "Poetical and Dramatic Works" of Oliver Goldsmith, or that a letter of Garriek's should fetch $175.

Yet such prices have little to do with literature proper. Many a man who possesses cheap copies of these auction items may get more enjoyment and culture out of editions the bibliophile would despise than the man who simply has to draw a check for whatever pleases his fancy.

Lord Rosebery, in a recent address in Scotland, decried the function of books as three fold to furnish information required in the professions, to furnish literature and to furnish recreation. De Quincy classified books as pertaining to the literature of knowledge and the literature of power. In neither sense, except from the aesthetic pleasures of ownership of a famous volume, can the high price of rare books in recent years be justified. They are chiefly due to an appreciation of the books where they have found profit. The great libraries which has now been practically dispersed, is said to have cost only about $750,000, while it brought at auction nearly $2,000,000.

With such an illustration of the rising value of rare books, there need be no wonder at the high price some of these volumes command.—New York World.

EARTH'S HEIGHTS AND DEPTH

From the Topmost Mountain to the Lowest Ocean Bed is Nearly Eight Miles.

The maximum difference in elevation of land in the United States is 14,777 feet, according to the United States Geological Survey. Mount Whitney, the highest point, is 14,501 feet above sea level, and a point in Death Valley is 276 feet below sea level. These two points, which are both in California, are less than ninety miles apart. This difference is small, however, as compared with the figures for Asia. Mount Everest rises 29,002 feet above sea level whereas the shores of the Dead Sea are 1,290 feet below sea level, a total difference in land heights of 30,292 feet. Mount Everest has never been climbed.

The greatest ocean depth yet found is 32,088 feet, at a point about forty miles north of the island of Mindanao, in the Philippine Islands. The ocean bottom at this point is therefore more than eleven and one-half miles below the summit of Mount Everest.

Forgot What He Needed.

From the Republican, Mt. Gilard, Ohio: The editor had an interesting experience some time ago, when a young gentleman came to this office and asked for a copy of the Morrow County Republican. He scrutinized it carefully when a copy was handed him, and then said: "Now I know! 'What is it you are looking for?' we inquired. 'My wife sent me after a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, and I forgot the name. I went to several stores and the clerks named over everything in the line on the shelf except 'Chamberlain's.' I'll try again, and I'll never go home without Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. The Republican would suggest to the proprietors of stores, that they post their clerks, and never let them substitute.
